

1. The first group of respondents (Group 1) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. They were contacted via telephone and asked to participate in the study.

2. The second group of respondents (Group 2) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. They were contacted via telephone and asked to participate in the study.

3. The third group of respondents (Group 3) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. They were contacted via telephone and asked to participate in the study.

4. The fourth group of respondents (Group 4) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. They were contacted via telephone and asked to participate in the study.

5. The fifth group of respondents (Group 5) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. They were contacted via telephone and asked to participate in the study.

6. The sixth group of respondents (Group 6) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. They were contacted via telephone and asked to participate in the study.

7. The seventh group of respondents (Group 7) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. They were contacted via telephone and asked to participate in the study.

8. The eighth group of respondents (Group 8) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. They were contacted via telephone and asked to participate in the study.

9. The ninth group of respondents (Group 9) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. They were contacted via telephone and asked to participate in the study.

10. The tenth group of respondents (Group 10) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. They were contacted via telephone and asked to participate in the study.

LUU MATTHEW

2676

[illegible]

INTERFERENCE SEARCHED
Class	Subclass	Date	Examiner

[illegible]